

MORE ABOUT THE PERSON JOSHUA SLOCOM

"On the 23d of June I was at last tired, tired, tired of baffling squalls and fretful cobble-seas.

And now, without having wearied my friends, I hope, with detailed scientific accounts, theories, or deductions, I will only say that I have endeavoured to tell just the story of the adventure itself"

This is a must-read, to be devoured; because it's the first solo circumnavigation of the globe waters, by Captain Joshua Slocum.

He departed from the USA in 1895, when he was 51. The boat he used, he himself had fixed; a not brand new one, the "Spray".

Azores, Gibraltar, Brazil and other South America nations, then the Pacific Ocean and Australia, are the initial itinerary landmarks. Next, back to the west, till Saint Helena isle where Napoleon had been in prison.

Yet he never made it back, as of 1909. He just "disappeared".
